Russians Repulsed But Recover Some Lost Ground.

JAPANESE ADVANCING.

Thunder of Cannon Is Heard From Every Direction Around Mukden.

New Chwang, March 2.—Chinese from Mukden report that the Japanese have advanced almost to Mukden. The Russians, having been reinforced, have captured several positions out of which they had been driven. The battle is still raging. The thunder of cannon is heard from all positions. Putiloff and Novgorod Hills are hidden by smoke from the guns. The bombardment was resumed after the repulse of an infantry attack by the Japanese. A heavy bombardment is also in progress in the neighborhood of the Shakhe bridge, apparently in preparation for an attack in that quarter. The weather continues fine and warm. The Chinese are preparing to sow their grain.

Wednesday was marked by attacks along the whole front. The fighting in the center is becoming serious.

GUN TOURNAMENT

To be Held in Hopkinsville Next Month.

The proposition made by the International Association of Trap Shooters for a big gun tournament to be held in Hopkinsville April 26 and 27 has been accepted by the local club. The event will doubtless bring together a large number of both professional and amateur "shots."

The Dark Tobacco Association made a trade Monday with W. L. Whitnell, the chairman, to prize the tobacco of its members. This assures a good job, as Mr. Whitnell is a thorough tobacco man and has made a success of the business and is in full accord with the producers. Times.

MRS. STANFORD WAS POISONED BY STRYCHNINE

Was Placed in Her Medicine Before She Left California.

FIRST DOSE KILLED HER

Bottle Contained Enough Poison to Exterminate an Army.

San Francisco, March 3.—The receipt by the Acting Chief of Police of a cable-gram from High Sheriff Henry, of Honolulu, stating that there were no less than 662 grains of strychnine in the bottle of bicarbonate of soda from which Mrs. Jane Stanford took a dose shortly before her death, has aroused the detective force of this city, and every effort is being made to discover who placed the poison in the medicine.

The bottle containing the bicarbonate of soda and its death portion originally was purchased in Australia, but, according to Miss Bertha Berner, Mrs. Stanford's private secretary, and the maid, May Hunt, the bottle was refilled in this city at a local drug store.

Dr. W. G. Stevens, a medical expert, to-day made this positive statement:

A member of Mrs. Stanford's household is suspected and the poison was evidently placed in the bottle before she left San Francisco.

CODE OF HONOR

Subject of a Very Thoughtful and Able Paper.

The Athenaeum met Thursday night with 19 members present and devoted the entire evening to Mr. Ira L. Smith's paper on "The Code of Honor." His discussion of the duel was of great historical value and the paper was in many respects one of the best and most interesting ones that has been read before the club. It was discussed by various members.

Messrs. Wallace Kelly and Thos. W. Long were elected to membership. Mr. John Stites and Mr. T. C. Underwood are on the program for next time. The date of the open session was changed from May 4 to April 28 to avoid conflict with the Dixon meeting.

It was decided to permit each of the 30 members to invite one gentleman, each member and male guest to be accompanied by a lady. The speakers for the banquet will be announced in a few days.

ROBT. LEWIS GETS 2 YEARS IN THE PEN.

Trial Was Brought to a Prompt Close Yesterday.

KILLED JIM CARLOSS.

Special Verdict of 75 Jurors to Take up Finch Case To-day.

The case of Robert Lewis, under indictment for the murder of Jim Carloss, another negro farm hand, was taken up in Circuit Court Thursday morning. The taking of testimony and the argument only consumed one day and the case went to the jury late Thursday afternoon. Yesterday morning a verdict was returned, finding the defendant guilty of manslaughter. His punishment was fixed at two years in the penitentiary.

The killing occurred April 9, 1904, on the Stegar farm, about six or eight miles south of the city. Carloss was shot and instantly killed by Lewis as they were on their way to the field to work about sunrise. They were both hands on the farm and had been working together for three years. Their wives had been quarreling and the killing was due to this domestic trouble.

Yesterday the case of the four Pembroke negroes to be tried for the murder of an unknown white man near that place on the night of Nov. 14, 1903, was called. Charles Finch announced ready and he will be tried first. The work of selecting a jury was begun and the regular panel was exhausted, with only one juror secured. An order was at once made for a special venire of seventy-five men to report here this morning and deputy sheriffs were sent out to the country to serve the summonses.

The George Griffin murder case was continued until the seventeenth day of the present term.

Ready to Begin.

The State Capitol Commission met at Frankfort. Architect Andrews said that work of erecting the Capitol will begin by June 1.

Three Days More!

OF OUR 5 DAYS SPECIAL 5!

And so far it has been a GRAND SUCCESS. Every one who came to our store Thursday and Friday was just tickled to death to find such great bargains, and they all went away with a big bundle of choice merchandise of all kinds, and they bought them at prices that will make you smile with pleasure to know that you can buy goods from us so cheap. So do not miss the next three days of our sale. It will be worth your while to come, for we still have lots of the choicest of merchandise that we must sell out in the next three days, and we will do it, for we are going to put such low prices on them that will go. So come, don't miss this chance. Remember, just three days longer. This sale closes March 8th, so don't wait, come at once and get some of all the good things. We have just received a new lot of Spring goods that will be put in this sale. Remember the remaining dates, March 4th, 6th and 7th.

The Weather.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—For Kentucky—Saturday partly cloudy.

The Elizabethtown News says John R. Allen, of Lexington, may be the "Folk that Kentucky needs."

President Roosevelt will honor Kentucky with another appointment in the Diplomatic service. Brutus J. Clay, of Richmond, will be nominated on Monday for United States Minister to the Republic of Switzerland.

The gubernatorial contest Committee of the Colorado Legislature yesterday decided in favor of Peabody. Only thirteen of the eighteen Republicans on the Committee would sign the report, however, while all the nine Democrats signed the minority report in favor of Adams. The case is now being argued and a vote will be reached to-night. The Republicans have the votes to count Adams out and are none too good to do it.

Mrs. Jane Lathrop Stanford, of San Francisco, widow of United States Senator Leland Stanford, died at Honolulu Tuesday night at the Moana hotel. Suspicious circumstances surround the death of Mrs. Stanford. She was taken ill 40 minutes before she died and said: "I have been poisoned." An autopsy was performed. The physician said the cause of her death was tetanus of the respiratory organs, but could not say how it was brought about until an examination could be made.

The Democratic party has the best chance it has had in many years to elect its county ticket this year. The party is united and in fine fighting trim and the Republicans are torn by dissensions in the ranks of the white leaders and are finding it harder and harder every campaign to control the colored voters by feeding them on broken promises. If the right kind of a ticket is nominated, the Democrats will sweep Christian county from Pond river to Flat Lick, from Macedonia to West Fork.

Poor Russia continues to bleed in every pore. With reverses at the front, the internal disorders are growing worse. The strike troubles are being renewed in all the important industrial centers. At St. Petersburg 50,000 men are out, and threats of a general strike are made unless the demands of the workmen's representatives are granted by the government. The trouble at Moscow has been resumed on a large scale. There is anarchy in the Caucasus and serious outbreaks from Warsaw and elsewhere.

The mock trial of W. S. Taylor at Des Moines resulted in a hung jury, with a jury upon which there was only one Democrat. Taylor, from his exile in Indiana, sent a brief and extended argument in his own defense. The jury deliberated eight hours. As the jury was made up of law students, young men of more than average intelligence, the result is bound to be a disappointment to Taylor, who hoped for a verdict of acquittal. Although a mere mock trial, the result will make an impression throughout the country.

By a graceful act Congress has returned to the seven Southern States the Confederate battle flags, together with the Union flags captured by the Confederates during the late Civil War. This act, says an exchange, should have a beneficial effect in cementing still closer the bonds of brotherhood between the two sections of the Union. It is the last act in the bloody drama and should bury all cause of future hatred. There are 544 of these flags, of the different States. Of these 104 are Union flags, which were captured by the Confederates and will be returned to them, together with the 440 belonging to the Confederate States.

BALDHEADED CLUB'S BANQUET.

It Was Brilliant and Broke all Records for Gorgeous Style and Fervid Oratory.

In order to suit the convenience of Col. E. R. Kelly, Col. Bill Tibbs, Col. C. D. Bassett, who had to go to the President's inauguration in Washington March 4th, the banquet planned for Feb. 31st was held on the 29th. Col. Bassett was one of the principal speakers, and as it was necessary to either change the time of the banquet or postpone the inauguration to enable him to fill both engagements, Col. Whitlow, Chairman of the Committee, kindly consented to the change of date.

Col. Bassett preferred this because President Roosevelt had gone to the trouble of fixing up a speech for use on that date and had even given out advance proofs of it to the papers, and he seemed to have his heart set of that particular day.

Another reason was that Col. Bill Tibbs's speech prepared for the 31st was getting a little over-ripe and fears were entertained that it would not keep two days longer.

Only one seat was vacant when the signal was given for the first course, and the waiters began to file in with trays laden with plates of raw oysters. Before all were served a noise was heard outside that sounded like the exhaust pipe of a gasoline engine. It came nearer and nearer until the one absent member dashed into the room, panting from the exertion of his exciting race against time. He dropped into the vacant seat and called, "Half a dozen raw, hurrah, or any other style."

The dinner was served in so many courses that some of the members had trouble in finding uses for all of the spoons, knives and forks arranged about their plates. Some of the Colonels complained that the waiters were careless in removing the knives and spoons. When pie was served there was a general protest because all of the knives had been removed, and by the time the ice cream was brought in the spoons were all gone and the cream had to be eaten with forks.

But at last the final course was served and the tables "cleared for action," as President Woodruff playfully remarked.

The President acted as toastmaster and acquitted himself with great eclat, as Col. Walter Southall would say, who changed cars at Paris (Tennessee) once on his way to Murray and became quite a French scholar.

A $700 diamond glittered on the President's expansive shirt bosom, a jewel that was eyed suspiciously by Col. Geo. E. Gary, who had one like it picked not long ago. Col. Woodruff indulged in a fine incongruous and desultory pleasantries, expressive of his great pleasure in welcoming so many Knights of the Shining Plate, and closed by saying that the best part was yet to come. Each of the speakers modestly smiled and patted himself on the back at this remark, and Col. Howell bowed his thanks for the compliment.

President Woodruff said Col. William Lawson Bamberger, his first speaker, had been called away suddenly last week to go abroad and was now in London, (Kentucky).

OUR NOBLE ORDER.

He called upon Col. Lemuel H. McKee, to respond to the toast, "Our Noble Order." Col. McKee handled his subject with as much ease and grace as he once toyed with a 500-pound weight on the stage at the Elks' circus. He told several funny stories and at times grew eloquent. He said in part:

"There have been great men in all ages of the world, not as great as we are perhaps, but still men of prominence in their time. Some have been great in war and some in peace; some in love and some in grease, but all of the really great men, with greatness blown in the bottle and printed on both sides of the wrapper, wore hair cut curly like mine and Col. Buck Leavelle's. (Applause and cries of 'Go it Lem'.)"

"Look at the long list of great poets: Pope, Goldsmith, Swinburne, Hobbes, Wordsworth, Bryant, Whittier, Juquin Miller, one and all were great poets, greater even than Col. Woodruff, and they all wore their hair just like Col. Walter McKee. And Shakespeare, the great and only Bard of Avon, had hardly enough hair on his dome of thought to spike a pound of boarding-house butter! (Tremendous cheers.) Come with me into other fields of literature: Dickens, Reade, Hawthorne, Hall Caine, Marion Crawford, Eugene Field and others too numerous to mention, had roof gardens under their hats as free from hair as the tail of a rat. Turn from literature to statesmanship and we find it the same there. Bismarck, Beaconsfield, Gladstone, Franklin, Madison, Adams, Patrick Henry, Daniel Webster and Wm. J. Bryan have enrolled their names on the shining records of glory." (Great applause.)

At this point Col. McKee had worked his hearers up to such a high state of enthusiasm that Col. Ben Armistead and Col. Ed. Gaither, who sat nearest the hero of the hour, lifted him upon their shoulders and marched in triumphal procession three times around the room. Meanwhile the band in the hall added to the general enthusiasm by playing that stirring circus air:

"The elephant goes round and round. The band begins to play; The boys around the monkey's cage Had better keep away."

Order was restored and Col. Joe Twyman was announced as the next speaker, with "The Few Things I Don't Know," as his subject.

Unfortunately Col. Twyman had fallen asleep during one of Col. McKee's jokes and when he was aroused asked to be excused, saying he had been up several nights recently preying all night with Col. Jim West practicing on some baby songs; they used to sing several years ago, and he really hadn't found time to get up a speech. Col. Bill Howell kindly offered to take up his time in connection with his own speech and was accordingly presented to discuss "Our President."

Col. Howell is always a graceful speaker, and is not handicapped by a lack of lung-play. As soon as he commenced to orate the drowsy members began to wake up and even the waiters appeared at the half-open door leading to the kitchen, craning their necks and straining their ears to catch every word he said. He spoke as follows:

"OUR PRESIDENT."

Response by Col. William Rothchilds Howell, who said:

"While the tide of war was rolling fiercely against the battlements of Fort Donelson, in the month of February, 1862, at a time when the conflict had stained with the life blood of 700 brave men the icy waters of the Cumberland river, a child was born in Trigg county, within hearing of the cannon that shook the earth for miles around. That child was named in honor of two great generals—Robert E. Lee and John H. Morgan. Although he was not like Achilles, born booted and spurred and ready for battle, his precocity was wonderful from the start, and was only equaled by his pugnacity.

When only ten months old he slapped his nurse in the face, the first Christmas day he ever celebrated, because she would not let him play with a pack of lighted fire-crackers. The smell of burning powder tickled his olfactory nerves and fired with martial ardor the warm blood coursing in his heroic veins. Unfortunately the war ended before he was old enough to fight, or the result might have been different.

He fought his way through the country school and at the age of ten years moved to Hopkinsville and at once began to shake up the old town and put the natives to guessing what was going to happen next. He lived through his boyhood, but had so many hair-breadth escapes that his hair was left behind when he was ready to enter upon the strenuous career that carried him by successive advancements from clerk in a tobacco warehouse to president of our noble order, our honorable and ancient order of which Aeschillus was a member and in 1894, when he was a shining light before the world, put a stop to skirt dancing in Pompeii, 1800 years ago. In all the lists of great men, who seemed to remember their heads well enough of hair-like heads of the world from Solomon to Woodrow, from the prophet Elisha to John H. Morgan, there has been no more illustrious example of clear headed wisdom than our distinguished president. Col. Robert E. Lee John H. Morgan Woodruff.

Col. G. H. Champlin at this stage was overcome by Col. Howell's eloquence and fainted from excitement and the orator was compelled to desist.

Several other colonels were on the verge of nervous prostration and it was some time before the speaking was resumed.

The last speaker was Col. Burch Milesoff Bassett, who was called upon to discuss "The Charge at Winesap Hill." The reporter succeeded in catching a portion of his speech, which created a profound impression.

"THE CHARGE AT WINESAP HILL."

Response by Col. Burch Milesoff Bassett:

"When I was a boy and read of the charge of the Imperial guard at Waterloo, when Blucher was on time and Grouchy failed to come, my blood boiled with martial ardor and I panted for military glory. When I scanned the lists of heroes who courted death in the charge of the Light Brigade into Death's Valley at Balaklava, I vowed if I ever got a chance I would die as dead as they did, and write my name a foot higher upon the scroll of immortality. The opportunity came at West Point eighteen-months ago, when the guns rained bullets, the cavalrymen reined horses and the clouds rained water. I was in it. I was it.

I marched my brave men up that hill when every puddle was an ocean and every sea at high tide. Did they falter? Did they let an apple or a chicken escape? Ask the Government that has just paid the bill for fruit that we picked and fowls that we plucked. And while Bassett's brave battalion hepped in time and stepped in mud and glory, where were the Colonels on the Governor's staff? Echo answers where.

And all through that arduous campaign, with involuntary baths forced upon them by downpours of rain, with their patent leather shoes bespattered with West Point mud, with volleys from blank cartridges poured into their devoted ranks every minute, they fought, bled and dyed and carved their names in letters of undying glory high upon the pinnacle of greatness. They fought for seats at the camp table, they bled the commissary department and they dyed their hands with blackberry juice from the briar fields of Hardin county. Need I say more? In ages to come, when the future historian records the deeds of valor that made men immortal, on the same page with Leonidas at Thermopylae, with Napoleon at the bridge of Lodi, with Ney at Waterloo, with Pickett at Gettysburg, with Stossel at Port Arthur, will be found in letters that time cannot efface, the charge of Bassett's Brave Boys at Winesap Hill.

Let us then be up and doing With a taste for chicken pate, Still achieving, still pursuing, Learn to catch 'em while we wait.

No braver fowls than those at West Point ever took their lives in their own feet and courted death with valor that would have done credit to a Hobson. All the world over there is an admiration for bravery, but fads had decreed that these heroic fowls should die and they met death without a word of complaint.

History tells us that the King of France with 40,000 men, marched up the hill and then marched down again. I did even more with my gallant troopers. We marched up Winesap Hill and stayed there, even when ordered to retreat. Begrimed with the smoke of blank cartridges, hungry from real exercise, and wet with rain water, they remembered Cardinal Richelieu's lesson of youth, in which there was no such word as 'fail'."

The Colonel's fervid eloquence had glued his hearers to their seats and riveted every one's attention. When he ceased there was a wave of applause that swept over the crowd like a Johnstown flood and on its highest tide the banqueters floated out and down into the streets.

The great banquet was over.

GOEBEL REWARD COMMISSION

Met Here Yesterday to Fill
Two Vacancies Caused By Death.

RESULT NOT ANNOUNCED

Another Vacancy Will Follow the Resignation of Mr. Richardson.

The three remaining members of the Goebel Reward Commission met here last night for the purpose of filling vacancies caused by the death of Chairman J. H. Lewis and Maj. L. C. Norman.

Dr. J. D. Clardy and Hon. W. M. Moore, of Cynthiana, met here at noon and held a preliminary meeting, conferring with Hon. J. M. Richardson by telephone at Glasgow. Dr. Clardy was made chairman of the meeting, which took a recess until nine o'clock at night, at which hour Mr. Richardson arrived. Two members were agreed upon, but their names were not given out. It is understood that Mr. Richardson will resign today and another member will be elected to take his place at the next meeting. One of the new members elected last night lives at Frankfort and the other in the Fourth district. Both are men of State prominence.

The law creating the commission empowers it to perpetuate itself, three members being a quorum. Mr. Richardson was appointed to succeed Judge B. W. Bradburn who resigned, and in tendering his own resignation he will recommend Judge Bradburn for his old place.

Died After Operation.

Mr. F. S. Rivera, nephew of Mrs. Elbridge Bradshaw, of this city, died in Nashville Wednesday morning, after an operation for appendicitis. He was 35 years old and a brother of Mrs. Frank Kelly, Miss Lula Rivera and Mrs. Morgan, all of this county. The remains were interred in Hopewell Cemetery Thursday.

TWO KILLED

In a Head-on Collision On
L. & N.

A head-on collision between two freight trains on the Louisville and Nashville railroad occurred five miles South of Lebanon Wednesday morning. Two members of the crew of train No. 10 were killed and another was badly injured. The engineer of the train fell asleep at the throttle and the train, instead of stopping at Denick's, according to orders, to meet the North-bound train, passed by the station at full speed and crashed into the North-bound train about a mile beyond.

Possibility That Hopkinsville
May Be Left out of K. I. T.

The proper local backing will have to be given the Hopkinsville Baseball team by this time next week to enable Hopkinsville to hold her place in the K. I. T. League. The schedule committee meets at Paducah March 12. A temporary arrangement was made for the $200 bonus, but the permanent deposit must be made to-morrow week.

The business men will of course back the local team again, as they put up a strong fund last year and will do even better this year, but the action should be taken at once to avoid any possible hitch at the final meeting.

Jolly For "Texas."

Harry Meyers, better known as "Big Texas," will cover firstbase this season for Hopkinsville in the K. I. T. League. His fast fielding and heavy hitting has made him a favorite with the Hoptown fans, and his many Portland friends expect to see him in the American Association before the close of the season.—Louisville Post.

DR. NASH'S COUSIN.

Prominent Man in Norfolk,
Va., Passes Away.

Rev. C. H. Nash has received news of the death of his cousin, Col. C. A. Nash, of Norfolk, Va., this week, at Pinehurst, N. C. He was 62 years old, a Confederate soldier and a Baptist. Several years ago Col. Nash entertained the Hopkinsville delegates to the Southern Baptist Convention when it met at Norfolk.

Dewey Sick.

Admiral Dewey, who has been ill for several days will not be able to take part in the inauguration parade. It is possible that some other officer of the navy will be selected to take his place.
